أهلاً وسهلاً بكم في “شباك 2013”

يشكل مهرجان “شباك” فرصة نادرة للاحتفال بثقافات العالم العربي الغنية والمتنوعة ضمن إطار واحد، فيسمح لنا أن نربط عناصرها بعضها ببعض بشكل جديد، فيتعمق فهمنا لها. “شباك” هو أيضاً مناسبة للاحتفال بالتأثير المتنامي الذي تتمتع به اليوم الجاليات العربية في مدينتنا.

إن العالم العربي وبريطانيا، ولندن بالذات، ربطتهم، وما زالت، علاقات وطيدة وتاريخية. في مهرجان “شباك”، ثمة فرصة للتأمل في طبيعة هذه العلاقات، ولاسيما في كيفية جعلها أكثر إثارة وثراءً وسلمية.

يعيش العالم العربي اليوم مرحلة مضطربة ومشحونة بالتحديات الجمة، لكنها مليئة أيضاً بالتوقعات والأمل. إننا نرى أن خير دليل على تعقيدات المرحلة هم فنانون المنطقة، وكتابها، ومبدعوها.

أخيراً، أمل أن تنضموا إلى فعاليات المهرجان العديدة، لتستكشفوا، بأمر عينكم، أن الثقافة العربية هي فعلاً مذهشة ورائعة، وأن تشاطرونا رأيًا أن مدينتنا قد تكون من أنسب الأماكن للاحتفال بها!

WELCOME TO THE 2013 EDITION OF SHUBBAK

Shubbak is a unique opportunity to celebrate the rich and very diverse cultures of the Arab World within one framework, allowing us to make new connections and better understand the societies which produce them. It also celebrates the growing influence of London's Arab population on our city today.

Shubbak is also a chance to look at how we in London and the UK were and continue to be connected to that part of the world, and how those connections can become more interesting, enriching and peaceful.

These are turbulent and challenging times for the region but they are also filled with expectation and hope. No one can guide us better through them than the region's writers, artists and creators.

Finally, I hope you will join us to discover for yourself why Arab culture is so awesome and remarkable, and why London is today one of the best places in the world to celebrate it.

Omar Al-Qattan
Chair, Shubbak 2013

MAYOR OF LONDON'S STATEMENT

London is undeniably a global city and one of the world's great centres, not just for international trade, but also for cultural exchange. Our city offers a gateway to Britain as well as to the rest of Europe, with arts and culture having a key role to play in building understanding with the Arab world.

I was thrilled with the success of Shubbak when we launched it in 2011 and am equally delighted to see this exciting arts festival return this year. It is a chance to see the world through new eyes and to strengthen relations between artists in London and the Middle East.

I have been fortunate to visit the Gulf this year and discussed Shubbak with many people, all of whom were enormously enthusiastic and supportive of the project. I congratulate everyone involved in creating this wonderful festival and hope many more Londoners will be encouraged to participate in the surprise and challenge that Shubbak will offer across the city this summer.

Boris Johnson
Mayor of London

ARTISTIC DIRECTOR'S STATEMENT

Shubbak is a window to discover the wealth of creativity of Arab artists, and to celebrate London's Arab artists with a wider public.

The 15 days of Shubbak offer 9 exhibitions and over 50 individual events, including theatre, dance, music, architecture, fashion, film, literature, talks and guided tours.

We have brought together a wonderful range of partners, from London's largest museums to intimate theatres, from the largest concert halls to specialist cinemas.

Shubbak is a festival of discovering new talent and new ideas. But we are proud also to present important artists, who have been pioneers for many years, who have been pioneers for many years, but deserve a higher profile on the international stage.

At each weekend we invite you to bring families for free outdoor events. On the first Saturday, Lyric Square in Hammersmith comes alive with music, workshops and activities. The following Sunday sees the popular Lebanese Festival Day on Cavendish Square and the final Saturday offers free family activities at the Serpentine Gallery.

There is no single viewpoint or style, just powerful ideas, fresh insights and new experiences. Shubbak, meaning window in Arabic, is a lens into these imaginations.

Eckhard Thiemann
Artistic Director

'Infinite Structure' 1963 - 5 by Saloua Raouda Choucair © Saloua Raouda Choucair Foundation

The world's first major museum exhibition of Lebanese artist Saloua Raouda Choucair celebrates this remarkable artist's extraordinary body of work. Choucair is a pioneer of abstract art in the Middle East and, in her 97th year, takes her rightful position as a significant figure in the history of twentieth-century art.

Through painting and drawing, architecture, textiles and jewellery, as well as her prolific and experimental sculptures, visitors can discover how Choucair has worked in diverse media in pursuit of her interests in science, mathematics and Islamic art and poetry.

'Baba Amr' - Alshaab Alsori Aref Tarekh ('The Syrian People Know Their Way')

A fine art student from Damascus University and a calligrapher from near Hama were making posters for the Arab Spring in Tunisia and Egypt when demonstrations began in their native Syria in 2011. Brainstorming over the internet, they were joined by Syrian activists from around the world. Now the anonymous 15 member poster collective Alshaab Alsori Aref Tarekh ('The Syrian People Know Their Way') combines the country's iconography with traditional motifs, poems, idioms and protest chants in posters distributed online. Their smart observations and pithy political sayings give heart to activists and provide a visual history of the uprising's development.

John Perkins

A medal wasn't the only thing President Nasser brought back from Moscow in 1958. Nasser is long dead, but something survives from the era of Soviet experts.

Photos by John Perkins and stories by Mona Abouissa take you inside a magical governmental department of lions, dynasties, acrobats, and bureaucrats. Successive regimes gave less and less to the circus; performers' wages stagnated leaving the youth chasing day jobs and kids' birthdays.

International tours became a distant memory of the older generation. By night, when the scent of tear gas is in the air, they return to the circus - their home.

Extract from 'Watani' (My Country). Painted by Mahmoud Sabri

This exhibition features the works of the pioneering Iraqi artist Mahmoud Sabri (1927 - 2012), who lived most of his life in exile. His paintings from the 1950s to 1970s addressed social issues and reflected the suffering of the Iraqi people.

In the 1970s he started a new phase of his work - Quantum Realism (www.quantumrealism.co.uk) - based on his belief that artists needed to develop new forms of art that represented the new atomic level of reality revealed by modern science to help people understand and engage with nature.

IN ADDITION: 29 June, 14.00 and 15.30: Guided Tours - free.

3 July, 18.00 - 20.00: Symposium - Mahmoud Sabri and art in Iraq. Includes talk with Satta Hashem and historic film documentaries - free

'I Feel Nothing' (video, 2013) by Jumana Emil Abboud. image courtesy of artist

This is an exploration of the concept of liminality. From the Latin limen, 'a threshold', liminality is a condition in which one's sense of identity is diffused, leading to states of dislocation and disorientation, but also to the possibility of new perspectives.

This exhibition and public programme culminates a year's collaboration between the Delfina Foundation, ArtSchool Palestine, the British Council and the ICA. It features British and Palestinian artists: Jumana Emil Abboud, Basel Abbas & Ruanne Abou-Rahme, Bashar Alhroub, Bisan Abu Eisheh, Jeremy Hutchison and Olivia Plender.

The programme was curated by Rebecca Heald with support from Mirna Bamieh.

IN ADDITION: 27 June, 18.30: Curator's Tour in Arabic with curator in residence Mirnah Bamieh.

'Mariam Haji - Belonging' by Camille Zakharia

Edge of Arabia collaborates with independent curator Latifa Al Khalifa to present In The Open, which explores a new paradigm of artistic expression in Bahrain. Al Khalifa explains, "The title refers to bringing into the open the artists' distinctive and intimate interpretations of what it is like to be living in such a diverse and complex society."

Presenting artworks from emerging and established artists working in a variety of media, the exhibition will shed light on this dynamic situation. Accompanying the exhibition will be a public programme, including regular tours led by the curator and artists.

 Produced by El Alfy Theatre Company

The El-Alfy Theatre Company produces Egyptian playwright Ali Salem's 1970 satire.

'The Comedy of Oedipus' is a hilarious, surreal, but always relevant re-envisioning of Sophocles' classical tragedy. Set in the Thebes of Ancient Egypt, this land has pharaohs and pyramids but also popularity contests and paparazzi and however hard Oedipus tries to modernise his people's thinking, they only worship him more.

Ali Salem's satire not only captures the absurdities and incongruities of mass communication but it also sheds a light on today's Egypt, its societal and political challenges and its dreams for the future.

Four women share a stage. One is Bouchra Ouizguen, a Marrakesh-based choreographer with a background in oriental and European contemporary dance. The others, Kabboura Aït Ben Hmad, Fatima El Hanna and Naïma Sahmoud, are aïtas: women who perform songs of pain, loss and impossible love at celebrations and nightclubs. Aïtas are admired for their singing but held in contempt by a predominantly male audience because of their songs' erotic undertone.

This is a fascinating encounter of voices and bodies, of two urban cultures.

The production is supported by the Embassy of the Kingdom of Morocco in London.

Seven is the number of days it takes the moon to move half its trajectory across our sky.

On one fateful evening the moon itself breaks and disappears, instilling terror throughout a village. Shadows, lights, mirrors, water and reflections fly unhinged in an attempt to put together the scattered pieces of the moon.

Led by storyteller Nadine Touma, we embark on a journey to the village pond, to Philomena's shop and to Bou Sleiman's orchard as these characters unite in an attempt to allow a new ascension of the moon, hoping once again to be able to tell stories.

Reviving traditional techniques of shadow theatre and hakawati (storytelling) in a contemporary way, Seven +7 is an adventure through light and shadow and the power of stories.

Shubbak opens with a double bill bringing together two of Algeria's most outspoken musical rebels.

A rocking dervish with a spirit tinged by oriental sensuality, rock'n'raï icon Rachid Taha made a much-awaited comeback this year with his ninth studio album Zoom, recorded with guests including Mick Jones of The Clash, Agnès B and Eric Cantona.

Soulful yet steely singer-songwriter Souad Massi has been hailed as Maghreb's Tracy Chapman. Fusing everything from chaâbi to American folk rock and Portuguese fado while mixing electric and acoustic instruments with haunting vocals, Souad's melancholic ballads bear the imprint of Algeria's troubled recent past.

Mastaba - Nuba Nour

NubaNour is a Cairo-based collective of Nubian singers and master frame drummers, performing traditional music, sacred and secular rites and contemporary songs reflecting the ongoing struggles of life in exile after the loss of their Aswan homelands in the 1960s during the High Dam construction.

Their stage show features call and response vocals accompanied by the oud and tar frame drum, thought to possess a mystical ability to evoke the sound of fire, water and air. Dance plays a central role in the performances with a unique Nubian dance called Fryy representing the movement of Balti fish in the Nile.

Marcel Khalife concert - Muzaffar Salman

A potent Arabic and Mediterranean pulse runs through the inimitable combination of traditional Middle Eastern and Western elements which characterises Lebanese composer and oud master Marcel Khalifé's music.

UNESCO Artist for Peace in 2005, Khalifé works to give voice to the joys and heartbreaks of the fraught region that is the Middle East, never afraid to make music even in the face of war; his performances in bombed-out concert halls in his native Lebanon are statement to that.

For this concert, he is joined by the Al Mayadeen Ensemble - which he founded in 1978 - to perform music inspired by the verses of Palestine's beloved late poet and exiled hero, Mahmoud Darwish.

Maya Youssef

The Vortex presents two very different artists, both of whom take their inspiration from traditional Arabic music and meld it with a Western sensibility.

Karama, led by Moroccan Oud player Soufian Saihi, takes inspiration from the ecstatic Gnawa, North African and Arabic classical music as well as the diverse sounds of London streets. The music wanders through different sonic landscapes from Tinariwen to Alice Coltrane.

Syrian kanun player, Maya Youssef, is a real master of this traditional instrument. Having recently collaborated with The Elysian Quartet, her music pushes the boundaries of what the instrument can do.

Bishara Haroni & Yaron Kohlberg, pianos.

Avner Dorman: Karsilama

Beethoven: Symphony No 7

Samir Odde Tamimi: Amal

Stravinsky: The Rite of Spring

The Palestinian-Israeli piano duo, Duo Amal, presents a programme of works by Beethoven and Stravinsky interspersed with works by contemporary composers from Israel and Palestine. Eastern flavours and driving rhythms punctuate 'Karsilama', a short work by Avner Dorman, and Samir Odde-Tamimi's atmospheric 'Amal' makes use of the whole of the piano with plucked strings and discordant harmonies.

Hijaz - Union Chapel. Arts Canteen

Arts Canteen presents Hijaz, a Belgium-based six-piece jazz fusion with a warm melodic and distinctly cosmopolitan sound.

Built around the oud and piano, their work is a heady mix of musical influences drawn from the Arab World and Europe. This is ensemble work at its best, with each musician and artist cleverly balanced against each other in a cultural paste of musical spices. Jazz might have grown out of the West African/ European melting pot, but here it feels very much at home in this Mediterranean setting.

Chants from the early Arab Christian traditions.

In the second century, during the reign of Queen Zanubia, Christianity reached Palmyra in ancient Syria. At that time the first church melodies, influenced by the secular Aramaic music of Syria and Iraq, began to be developed.

Egyptian/German singer Merit Ariane Stephanos and Father Shafiq Abouzayd introduce the audience to this music, in particular to the chanting traditions of the Levantine and Byzantine churches through an informal lecture and performance. They are accompanied by multi-instrumentalist Jon Banks.

The sound world of these chants is rich with quartertones and Middle Eastern virtuosic ornamentation.

With global brands waking up to the power of the Islamic clothing market, valued at almost $100 billion, fashion is about to join food and finance as the third 'F' in Islamic branding.

Professor Reina Lewis talks to Emirati designer Rabia Zargarpur in an evaluation of the importance of fashion in cultural as well as commercial exchanges.

Founded after 9/11 to provide 'conservative chic' for the growing numbers of young Muslim women turning to the hijab, Rabia Z was launched in 2007. Rabia will join Reina in a discussion of the challenges encountered by modest fashion designers in local Arab and international markets.

Mohammed Hassan Alwan

Jana Elhassan

The Lebanese Jana Elhassan and Saudi Arabian Mohammed Hassan Alwan are amongst six authors shortlisted for this year's prestigious International Prize for Arabic Fiction.

These authors explore the complications of family life and themes of migration, memory and destiny. In Elhassan's Me, She and the Other Women, a woman frustrated by her marriage constructs a new imaginary identity. Hassan Alwan's The Beaver plots a man's memories of a troubled family history as he embarks on fishing trips in the USA, far from his Saudi Arabian homeland.

The authors discuss their work and the contemporary literary scene in the Middle East and wider Arab world.

Produced by The Arab British Centre with support from English PEN and Telegram Books

Join the Arab British Centre in celebrating the English translation of Rabai al-Madhoun's 'The Lady from Tel Aviv'.

This work, shortlisted for the International Prize for Arabic Fiction 2010, is both a meditation on the nature of fiction and an incisive exploration of the effects of occupation on a people and what it is to be a Palestinian.

A Palestinian writer and Israeli actress meet on a plane bound for Tel Aviv. Their interactions exposes the chasm between them in the land they both call home.

The English translation is by Elliot Colla.

Born in Palestine in 1945, Al-Madhoun is one of the Arab world's prominent literary figures.

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE: REGIONAL VIS-À-VIS GLOBAL DISCOURSES: CONTEMPORARY ART FROM THE MIDDLE EAST

Egypt /2012/ 94 min/ Drama/dir. Ibrahim El-Batout with Salah Hanafy, Moataz Mossallam, Amr Waked (Won Best Actor at Dubai Film Festival 2012)

Winter of Discontent (El sheita elli fat) is set against the momentous backdrop of the whirlwind protests in Cairo's Tahir Square, beginning on January 25, 2011. Activist Amr, journalist Farah, and State Security officer Adel experience a shifting reality in the days and nights leading up to the resignation of President Mubarak. As the stories of these characters unfold, they are propelled headlong into the heady, often surreal atmosphere of terror, uncertainty, and mass euphoria that surrounded those days that shaped history.

Algeria, Germany, France, China/ 2012/ 83 min/ Documentary/ dir. Damien Ounouri with Mohamed el Hadi Benadoud. Selected at Toronto International Film Festival 2012

During the Algerian Revolution, the great-uncle of the Director El Hadi joined his sister in France and became an active member of a secret FLN armed group. Following the settling of scores, attempted murder, hiding, imprisonment and finally deportation back to Algeria in 1962, El Hadi belongs to a generation nearing extinction whose experiences constitute a history not yet thoroughly documented or understood. Intimate, lyrical, inquisitive and compelling, Fidaï is an invaluable testimony about one of the twentieth century's revolutionary milestones, and timely in a decade that has seen an unprecedented wave of revolt and pressure for change in the Middle East.

Algeria, France/ 2012/ 87 min/ Drama/ dir. Merzak Allouache with Nabil Asli, Adila Bedimerad, Khaled Benaissa. Won Europa Cinemas Label in Cannes Film Festival 2012

In the Algerian region of the high flatlands, as Islamist groups spread terror, a young Jihadist called Rashid leaves the mountains and returns to his village. Following the law of "pardon and national harmony", he has to surrender to the police and give up his weapon. He receives amnesty and becomes a "repenti". But the law cannot erase his crimes. For Rashid it is the beginning of a one-way journey of violence, secrets and manipulation. Algerian director Merzak Allouache gives a hauntingly powerful tale of a reformed Algerian fundamentalist attempting to reintegrate into society only to find some secrets impossible to hide.

Egypt, France/ 2011/ 135 min/ Drama/ dir. Khaled El Hagar with Ahmed Azmi, Sawsan Badr, Maryhan. Selected as the Egyptian entry for the Best Foreign Language Film at the 84th Oscar Academy Awards in 2012

Lust (El Shoq) brings us into the lives of the inhabitants of a marginalised street in Alexandria, the second largest city in Egypt. Familiar, moving and funny, each character is isolated in his or her fierce yet fragile dreams.

The central character, Umm Shoq, is a woman whose sense of shame and inadequacy drives her to gain leverage over the little world in which she lives. Her personal story feeds the unfulfilled longings and repressed desires of her family and neighbours, while driving the oppression that grips them all.
